HEREBY DECREES

Art. 1 – Number of research grants/positions available

A public competition for the assignment of n. 1 grant for the carrying out of research activities (hereinafter the “research grant”) at the University of Gastronomic Sciences.

Art. 2 – Progetto di ricerca

- Title of the research project: PRIN 2017 - TT - Transatlantic Transfers: The Italian Presence In Post-War America.

- Activities:

The PRIN research "Transatlantic Transfers: Italian culture in the post-war United States" aims to re-evaluate the role of Italian culture in defining a distinctive modern, cosmopolitan and urban style in the post-war United States.

The dimensions of the transatlantic relationship between the United States, Europe and Italy after World War II is studied in depth together with so-called "Americanization" of the European continent through the American consumer culture, articulated through the transfer of capitalist models of marketing, advertising and public relations; consumer institutions such as supermarkets and franchises; and cultural products such as Hollywood cinema, rock and jazz music, Coca-Cola, contemporary art and literature, clothing and design.

The premise of the research is that the hegemonically exported American consumer culture (according to the above literature) was actually created in a bidirectional, circulatory and hybridizing process of exchange that saw Italian, private and public consumer models, institutions and consumer products contribute very significantly to form American meanings, tastes and lifestyles in the years of the Cold War and in the years of the US military, financial and industrial hegemony in the regime of mass production, consumption and culture. Furthermore, the research aims to take into consideration the role of the Italian American community, descendant of the three and a half million Italian immigrants at the turn of the twentieth century and affected by new migratory flows from the peninsula after the Second World War, in the processes of cultural and economic transfer between Italy and the United States.

The research therefore aims to fill and bridge important historiographic gaps and to produce a new understanding of the unraveling of cultural, political and commercial relations that have shaped the relationship between Italy and the United States in the second half of the twentieth century and beyond.

The research will analyze in particular the Italian influence in the American consumer culture in five areas: food, fashion, cinema, art and design by tracing the inherent paths in both the material and productive culture and the symbolic production of the immaterial meanings by identifying the individual and collective protagonists.

The research grant holder, under the supervision of the scientific head of the research program, will focus on:

-the examination of widely circulated journals, research journals and other publications (e.g. publications of the Italian Chambers of Commerce in the United States) and the indepth examination of archives for the retrieval of primary sources and quantitative data relevant to research (e.g. documents of the 'ICE - National Institute for Foreign Trade, documents of Italian companies operating in the United States), mainly located in the United States and in particular in the city of New York.

- the bibliographic research for the retrieval of books, essays and secondary literature articles useful for the formation of the analytical research system.

- writing essays, articles, materials and reviews relating to the research topic, where required and in accordance with the general objectives of the research.

- the research of archives for the retrieval of cultural, audiovisual products and artefacts possibly contributing to the final exhibition of the PRIN “Transatlantic Transfers” project at the Milan Triennale (2023).

The research grant holder may be required to participate in the methodological workshop that will be held at UNISG in Pollenzo, approximately on 25-26 June 2021.
