On September 13, 2018, at 9am, the Doctoral Admissions Committee for the PhD Program in Ecogastronomy, Education and Society as per Rectoral Decree n. 213/18 – June 12, 2018 was convened.

All the members of the committee, nominated by Rectoral Decree 214/18 of July 9, 2018, were present:

1. Prof. Nicola Perullo, Director of the PhD Program in Ecogastronomy, Education and Society, scientific subject area M-FIL/04 – Esthetics – University of Gastronomic Sciences.

The maximum score of 100 points was divided between the written exam and the academic and aptitude interview as follows:

Assessment	Procedure	Evaluation criteria	Maximum score
• Written exam	Candidates taking the written exam had to develop a short critical text based on an outline chosen at the start of the exam from a selection of three outlines prepared by the Admissions Committee the day before the exam date. The exam could be written in Italian or English.	The aim of the written exam is to ascertain the candidates' capacity for writing, synthesis and critical development of themes and problems relating to the general topic of the PhD program.	50
• Academic and aptitude interview	The interview involves a discussion of the candidate's curriculum, their proposed research project and any publications presented. The interview also includes a reading and comprehension test in a language other than the candidate's mother tongue (English for Italian native speakers, Italian for non-Italian native speakers).	The interview ascertains the candidate's general and specific background, as well as their motivation to undertake the PhD and their planned subsequent professional research career.	50
